Ken,

You and your team unbelievably exceeded any expectation I had painting my V35B Bonanza. Without question it is now the finest looking V tail in the fleet. Everyday I look at the airplane to admire the quality, detail, and perfection of the work of Flying Colors.

We began the process a couple of years ago as I imagined the design and colors that would make this V35 really stand out. The V tail itself presented some challenges which Scheme Designers offered many options. The next hurdle was color. It was difficult for me to combine the design with the right color and envision the outcome. You were a great coach.

The call you made to Nancy and me to come look at the PC-12 ready to deliver brought it all together. The colors were perfect. You then took the design we liked applied your sense to the sophistication we desired, tuned the design, and gave some final thoughts which really helped us believe in what we were about to do. The outcome is spectacular. We trusted your thoughts at each point in the process and you were always correct.

Living an hour away gave me the opportunity to visit weekly to observe the progress. I am amazed at the extent to which you go to produce the perfect product. I reviewed each step while admiring the care and quality your team put into everything they did. It was an excellent experience to understand the intensive process of painting an airplane.

Since bringing the airplane home I have gone over every detail of your work. It is perfect. Almost beyond perfect as I find new details each day, most recently the interior detailing.

You and your team are the best. Thank you for a "new" V35B that looks better than when it came off the assembly line. Who says V35B Bonanza are out of production?

Best personal regards from both of us,

David Field
